The following table exhibits the wholesale prices of certain articles of prime necessity in the New York market on the 1st day in January, 1860, and in 1864, and the 16th day of September, 1878:

Articles	1860	1864	1878
Wheat, per bush.	$ 1.40	1.82	1.01
Oats, " "	52 50	89 00	46 00
Corn, per bush.	88 00	87 50	26 00
Rye, " "	92 00	80 00	24 00

Eggs, per lb.	54 00	26 00	00 00
	$31 30 00	$39 00 00	$29 97 00

The foregoing list of prices shows that articles which cost $33.30 in 1860, and $43.25 in 1864, can now be purchased for $29.97. Does this look like hard times?

So few persons properly estimate that difference between a high and low rate of interest, and therefore often borrow money at a ruinous rate that no legitimate business can stand. Very few have figured on the difference between six and eight per cent. One dollar loaned for one hundred years at six per cent with the interest collected annually and added to the principal, will amount to $340. At eight per cent it amounts to $2,303, or nearly seven times as much. At three per cent the usual rate of interest in England, it amounts to $129.5; whereas at ten per cent, which has been a very common rate in the United States, it is $13,809, or about seven hundred times as much. At twelve per cent it amounts to $84,075, or more than four thousand times as much. At eighteen per cent it amounts to $15,145,007. At twenty-four per cent (which is some times the rate when it reaches the enormous sum of $2,551,709,040.

One hundred dollars borrowed at six per cent with the interest compounded annually, will amount to $1,849 in fifty years, while the same $100 borrowed at eight per cent will amount to $4,680 in fifty years. One thousand dollars, at ten per cent compounded, will run up to $17,860 in fifty years.

private family. But the farmer looks less for refinement than for strength and robustness in a domestic. In addition to the performance of household duties, she is expected to assist in milking the cows, and during the harvest, in the field. Maud Muller like, making hay. Her toils are arduous and her compensation small. She seldom receives more than 47 cents a week for her services. In the field where she receives 65¢. In large farm-houses she may have the care of one or two departments of labor—that of the cows and dairy alone, or the domestic duties, including the cooking. In the latter labor she receives but a pittance. The next lower grade of service is that of the field. Farm laborers, when making their contracts with farmers, are usually required to supply the services of one or two of their family. They have no wives or sisters to supply this requirement, they must hire a girl for this purpose. The girl who accepts such service, and hundreds are obliged to do it, subjects herself to the same treatment as the field laborer. Her position is little removed from that of the slave.

and autumn days, in the fields of England and Scotland, scattering the grain and planting the potatoes, or following the plow and gathering together the potatol fields, or reaping the grain and binding the sheaves.

The Presbyterian church has another heresy to expunge from it membership, namely, the pre-millennarian belief. A contributor to the New York Evangelist who writes as by authority, taking note of the spread of "second advent" doctrines at the West, which we recently noted, declares that persons holding these views (among whom are Rev. Drs. West, Reaser and Duffield) have no right to stay in the Presbyterian church. "The pre-millennarian scheme," he says, "is at the basis of a vast and serious series of doctrines, ever rejected by the Christian church as fanatical, visionary and dangerous." What doctrines can be more important than the kingdom of Christ, his second advent, the resurrection of the dead and the judgment? These are articles of the Apostles' creed, the heartiles of faith of the universal church; so that differing from the Presbyterian church on those points, they differ and are pronounced heterodox by entire Christendom."

plow and seed; that depends somewhat upon the condition of the soil - but I am now speaking of land with a firm sod, but I would out and run out, as we term it; and in producing but a small quantity of hay. You will see, by my statement, that I have valued the manure from sheep one-third more in summer than in winter. From my own experience and observation, I am fully satisfied that sheep are of very great value on improved land, and that they should always be kept on the ploughed land, and ahead of the scythe.
